THE FIELD PAMILY'S INSERITANCE OF INSANITY.

Members of Past Generations Who Bled Insanc-A Sister of the Accused Banker, E. M. Fleid, Now in an Asylum-His Wife ted Brother Testify that for Two Years He Has Been Mentalty Unbalanced.

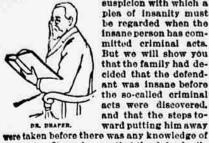

As the jury in the Court of Over and Taxminer was empanelled to decide whether Edward M. Field is now same enough to plead to the indictments for forgery, the burden of proving the proposition of sanity falls upon the defence. Yesterday was a painful day for the Field family, as various members of it, including the brother and the wife of the prisoner, were called to show not only the lack of mental balance in E. M. Field, but also the taint by heredity.

As the court officers were careful to let into the court room only those who had some right to be present, there was no crowding and a disappointed multitude was turned away. The prisoner's hair was less unkempt than on the day before, but his appearance was worse if exposing his collarless neck, red, and sharply contrasting with his bloated, sickly white face He kept his face hidden the whole day and. so far as could be seen, showed no sign of emotion except an occasional jerking of his muscles while his brother and his wife were testifying.

Mr. Cockran addressed the jury at the becinning of the morning session, setting forth his line of proof of insanity. After touching spon the points afterward developed by testimony, he said: "We propose to show that the field family, so brilliant in one generation, producing several brothers of national repu-tation, was tainted at the root; that a sister of the defendant is insane, and that several other members of the present generation are weakminded.
"We will show you that the defendant was meane for some time previous to the failure. The prosecution will no doubt dwell upon the suspicion with which a insane person has committed criminal acts. that the family had decided that the defendant was insane before the so-called criminal acts were discovered. and that the steps toward putting him away were taken before there was any knowledge of these acts. It was known that the defendant's Mairs were involved, but it was supposed that he was still a rich man and the assignment was made, not because of a note going to protest or because of any of the ordinary business occurrences which precipitate a failure, but simply because an assignment was thought to were known to be involved, but not thought to The first witness Mr. Cockran called was

Dr. Joseph Draper, Superintendent and physician in charge of the Vermont Insane Asylum at Brattleboro. He had had to do with insane persons for fifty-six years. He said that he remembered the case of Lorenzo Field, a son of the Rev. Timothy Field, cousin of Cyrus W. Field. Referring to the records of the asylum, which he had brought with him. Dr. Draper said that the Rev. Timothy Field, a Congregational clergyman of Westminster. Vt., and a brother of the Rev. David Dudley Field, had been admitted to the Vermont Insane Asylum on Feb. 15, 1845. He was then 70 years old, and was suffering from acute mania. After a week of violent madness he died from exhaustion. From the history of the case it appeared that Timothy and David Dudley Field, had been brought to the asylum on Nov. 11, 1859, under the delusion that every one wanted to kill him, and that he must destroy himself. On Dec. 23 he was discharged as recovered. Thirteen years afterward, in June, 1872, he was again sent to the asylum on May and was gain cured and discharged. In July, 1872. Illa Field, a daughter of Lorenzo, was put in the asylum at Bomerville. She was then 21 years old, and her insanity took the form of thinking her father hai forbidden her to est. After two years of complete madness she died in the asylum and was gain oured and discharged. In July, 1872. The recovery of the Rev. Timothy Field and also of several other members of his family. The Rev. Dr. Henry M. Field, the editor of the Evangelist and a brother of Cyrus W. Field, was next called. He testified to the imbecility of his father. He told how a sister of the prisoner, Cyrus W. Field's oldest daughter, was confined in Dr. Choate's asylum in Pleasant-ville. She is now about 40 years old, and has been confined for many years. She was known to be subject to temporary aberrations of the mind when she wrote and published two novels—"Griesheim," a story of Scotland, and "Palermo," a story of Sicily—which had a wide circulation.

Mr. Weeks asked him if he did not know that the insanity of Miss Field took the form of believing she was the wife of Phillips Brooks.

"No. sir. I do not," said Dr. Field. "I have not seen her for years. I believe I have heard that she thinks herself the daughter of the light of France."

act seen her for years. I believe I have heard that she thinks herself the daughter of the King of France."

Dr. Field then named over the ten children of the Ikev. David Dudley Field, so many of whom have come to eminence—David Dudley Field, Mrs. Brewer, the mother of Justice Fiewer of the Supreme Court: Jonathan Field, Justice Stephen J. Field, Cyrus W. Field, Ams. Stone, Matthew Field, and a Stephen J. Who died in infancy. He told the number of children and granadchildren they had as nearly as he could remember.

"Aside from the defendant and his sister," said Mr. Weeks, "do you know of any other cases of weak mindedness in the descendants of the Riev. David Dudley Field."

"No. sir," said Dr. Field, "I do not know of any other cases." Afterward this answer was modified so that the Doctor said he had heard of some other cases. Both the State and the defence were disposed to leave the misfortunes of the other members of the family as much in the background as possible.

Mr. E. Ogden Bradley, President of the Tartytown National Bank, saidlhe knew Edward M. Field well, that Cyrus Field was part owner of the bank, that E. M. Field had at one time been a heavy borrower, but that he had refused to be bank, that E. M. Field began to grow slovenly in his dress, and where he had been clear cut in his business methods he became dulland unreliable.

Mr. W. A. Burnham, a trustee of the Presbyterian Church at Irvington, of which F. M. Field was treasurer, testified that Field had falled to cash several checks which the witness had sent him, that he had been incoherent when questioned about them, and that he papearance had changed wonderfully in the latting of the Field was treasurer, testified that Field had falled to cash several checks which the witness had sent him, that he had been incoherent when questioned about them, and that he papearance had changed wonderfully in the latting of the Field was treasurer.

Like a Dead Fish.

I had terrible ECZEMA for 18 years-was in bed six months at a time—body and limbs swollen and scaly like a dead fish. The itching was terrible, and FINALLY LOST MY SIGHT.

for Irvington last November, and that Field had acted so strangely that he at first thought him intoxicated. He gave me an invitation to come up to his house twelve times in succession, not seeming to notice that I had refused it each time. Then he invited me to drive part of the way with him. I accepted, but he disappeared, on the pretext of giving the engineer his orders. The thing that struck me about the expression of his face was the nothingness of it."

Cyrus W. Field, Jr., the younger brother of the defendant, said that he was 34 years old and that his brother, the prisoner, was twenty months older than he. "I remember," said young Field, "that, when my brother was about 10 years old, he was brought home unconscious one afternoon having head a fall when my brother was about 15 years old, he was brought home unconscious one afternoon, having had a fall from his horse. He was unconscious for forty-eight hours. He had struck the back of his head against the stones. He was not allowed to study for a long time afterward. In 1872 he entered Williams College and graduated in the class of '70. Then he went in business. I began to notice a change in him about two years ago. He was gruff, morose, and overbearing where he had been kindly and gentle. He also began to get gross and flabby. He lost his memory for engasements and often, after inviting me to luncheon to talk business, would fail to appear and, when I reproached him, he would deny having made any engagement. As to business, I could never make head or tall of what he was talking about."

When the court officer called "Mrs. E. M. Field!" a small, slender woman, dressed in black, and wearing an old-fashloned black bonnet and a long black veil not covering her face, took the witness stand. Her face was careworn, and, although her manner was composed, she came dangerously near breaking down several times. She told her story in a straightforward way in a low, even voice.

"My name is Clara L. Field," she said. "I was married to E. M. Field fifteen years ago, My maiden name was Lindley, and my brother was the Lindley of the firm of Field, Lindley, Wicchers & Co. I have known E. M. Field for nineteen years. Before we were engaged he and I and a party of young men and young women took a wagon ride from Williamstown to Fittsfield. On the way Mr. Field lay down in the bottom of the wagon and became unconscious. He was carried into a house by the roadside and then to Pittsfield, where he was sick for several weeks. We were married in 1877.

"I think the change in his manner and appearance dated from January, 1850, when he had the grip. Before that time he had been so attentive to me that it often made me uncomfortable. After the attack of the grip he went to the other extreme and neglected me, became exacting, excitable, unreasonable. I remember he said to me once. 'If you are going to be sick I wish you would go away, as I don't want any sick people around.' In the night time he would be restless and would sometimes grow hysterical, crying and saying that if I ceased to love him he would kill himself. Several times I had to call in persons to quiet him.

he was devotedly attached to her. He brought a gentleman, a stranger, home to dine that evening, although I had reminded him of the party in the morning. Then he talked about chartering a big sailing ship to take us all on a vovage around the world. Before that he wanted us to go around the world in his yacht, which is a little thing only 05 feet long.

"He has complained of pains in the back, and in the back and top of his head for several years. Often he would say: I can't think. The pain in my head is so bad. The Sunday before the failure he told Mr. Wiechers and me, when Mr. Wiechers came up with an anonymous letter about the firm going to pieces, that there was plenty of money, that he was rich and was making lots of money.

"About 4 o'clock in the morning of the day of the fallure I began to puzzle about this anonymous letter and the way Mr. Field was acting, and how his brother had warned momonths before that my husband was crazy, and, as he was awake, I began to question him. He was so incoherent and he protested so loudly and so queerly that I was Irightened. And then I went over to see his brother and to take steps toward putting him in the asylum."

When Mr. Cockran had done questioning Mrs. Field, Mr. Nicoll declined to cross-examine her, and she left the court room, passing within a few feet of her husband and keepher eyes carefully away from him. His face was still covered with his hand.

Dr. Draper was recalled, and Mr. Cockran asked him what impression the appearance of Mr. Field made upon him as a man of long experience in insanity. Dr. Draper said: "He has that absence rather than presence of experience in insanity, and that his statement was not an opinion after careful examination. but merely an impression. Dr. Draper sid further that he was under the impression that Field's appearance suggested secondary insanity, and that the rewere few infallible tests of insanity, and that he intends to present the theory that the incoherent and violent actions of the prisoner at the time of the fullure

Mrs. Muesch Says Mr. Schoemacher Want-ed Her to Elope With Him. Mrs. Wilhelmina Muench, who keeps a boarding house at 128 Badger avenue, New-ark, was arraigned before Justice Preisel of the Fourth Precinct Court yesterday for an assault upon Nicholas Schoemacher, one of her boarders, who showed evidence of severe handling. He said that she beat him black handling. He said that she beat him black and blue because he had not paid his board since Christmas.

Mrs. Muench was indignant when arrested, and said that she heat Schoemacher with a club because he wanted her to steal $200 from her hushand and clope with him. She is 43 years old and plump. Schoemacher is about the same age, but he is no match for her physically. He says that after Mrs. Muench beat him her husband. Fritz Muench continued the thrashing. Muench says that if he had had a revolver at the time he would have killed him.

NEW OFFICES FOR THE CENTRAL. A Handsome Building to be Erected in Forty-second Street.

Dr. Chauncey Mitchell Depew. President of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, wants more room, and it was decided ployees of the Central have multiplied so rapidly that there is no longer room for all of them in the Grand Central Station, so vesterday the directors approved plans for a new building in Forty-second street, nearly opposite the depot. There is a two-story brick building on this site, which is owned by the Central, and a part of it is occupied by the to tear down this latter portion of the street and adjoins the Lincoln National Bank building, and to erect in its place a ten-story building. are such that an exact reproduction of the building can be erected later on the other half of the site and thus make one harmonious building, with a frontage of 155 feet on Forty-second street and 105 feet on Park avenue. The architect is Bradford L Gilbert of 50 Broadway.

No expense is to be spared in making the building attractive. It will be ten stories high, with a depth of 18 feet. There will be a light court in the rear. The style of architecture is modernized Romanesque. Granite will be used for the lower portion of the front will be ornamented with bronze panelling. There are to be bay windows in the second story over the entrances, carried on grotesque corbeis and ornamented with modelled bronze. The building will be 130 feet high. The Adams Express Company will occupy the ground floor, with the exception of a hall on the west side, where there will be an information bureau and a handsomely fitted up loggia will be tiled and the ceilings deeply panelled. This room will be finished in onyx and marble. The rest of the building will be used by the railrond company for offices. Pneumatic tubes will extend from the information bureau on the main floor to all parts of the building.

Rooms now used in the Wagner building, across Vanderbill avenue from the Grand Central Station, will be given up, and the general road master, the comptroller, and the passenger, freight, and disbursing departments will have quarters in the new building. Notice has been given the Adams Express Company to find quarters elsewhere from May 1 until the completion of the new building. The frontage of the new building will be under the surface of the syling will include also the small room east of the offices of the express company, now used as a trunk store. The building rooms for 150 clerks have been engaged in neighboring buildings.

Three Jurers Accepted Testerday-Four

The trial of Bookmaker Burton C. Webster. under indictment for the murder of Charles III. of the Court of General Sessions before Judge Cowing. The second day was devoted to efforts to obtain the seven men needed to complete the jury. It was announced some time ago that Eve-lyn Granville had become a mother. The baby has not yet made its appearance in the court room, but Lawyer Howe has spoken for it several times in his questions to jurors. Yester-day morning it was left at the lawyer's effice day morning it was left at the lawyer's effice while its mother cape to court. When the lawyer spoke about it in examining a talesman, Judge Cowing languidly asked:

"Can't we leave the baby out of this case?" Evelyn Granville came in about 12 o'clock. At recess, when Webster ate lunch, she stood with him and conversed in a low tone. She took a great interest in the proceedings and remained until court adjourned at 3½ o'clock. When the trial began there were about forty names in the jury list. These were exhausted at 3½ o'clock yesterday. Judge Cowing suggested that jurors from other parts of the court be used, but Lawyer Howe objected, and a new panel was ordered.

Three jurors were selected, making eight in all who have passed the preliminary examination satisfactory to both sides. The three chosen yesterday are: Patrick F. Dolan, a baker at 631 Ninth avenue: Adam G. Loughlin, retail dry goods, 732 Tenth avonue, and William H. Buckingham, a glove salesman, of 520 Broadway.

The case will go on this morning at 11 o'clock.

Waltz Music at His Funeral,

BUFFALO, Feb. 23.-Frederick Moet, a prominent and wealthy German. was cremated at the Buffalo Crematory to-day. He had been a freethinker, and requested that his will be be read before his funeral was held. The document provided that a certain sum be document provided that a certain sum be spent for his funeral. Other instructions followed, and to-day they were carried out to the letter. The body, accompanied by a number of the man's frienda, a band, and a double quartet, was conveyed to the crematory. When the body had been placed in the oven the band played waltz music and the quartet sang popular songs. After the body had been consumed all present went to neighboring café and had a dinner provided with money left by Mr. Moet.
